

DUDDITS RIFLE IN VIRGINIA TRAIN

FORCED ENGINEER TO TAKE
TRAIN TO TOLL GATE—RIFLE
MAIL, SECURE MILLION IN UN-
SIGNED PAPER AND $300 CASH

United Press Service
PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 3.—Two bandits robbed the westbound Baltimore & Ohio train at Central, fifty miles east of here, last night. The mail cars were uncoupled and the bandits forced the engineer to take them to a tollgate, six miles west. The mail was rifled and the robbers escaped with a large amount of unsigned paper money and $300 in cash. They boarded a waiting automobile and escaped.

One report is that $1,000,000 in unsigned paper money was taken. Officials of the comptroller's office say that the unsigned notes are legal tender if circulated. The only advantage is that they can be traced to the circulators with much more difficulty, as in the case of the noted train robbery in Montana some years ago. One of the bandits in that case was arrested in Tennessee some months after the robbery, and his conviction secured through the possession and passage of unsigned notes of the Bank of Helena.

WHAT THE WAR MOVES MEAN

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Greece in typical Balkan fashion has been trying to play two sides against each other. This has resulted in an unexpected crisis which may have a serious effect upon her future fortunes. The ministerial crisis—resignation of Premier Venizelos and the cabinet, is due to the landing of allied forces on Greek soil. Greece wants them out, but the government did not want to give formal consent to this move, so that her neutrality might not be compromised if Bulgaria kept peace.

Apparently, she technically protested at the landing, while at the same time Greek officers assisted in the work of debarkation. The premier approved of this equivocal attitude, but King Constantine's opinion thereto, forced his resignation. The king's duty now to find a premier who can command a majority in parliament, but if he is unable to find such a man, and still persists in thwarting Venizelos, then Constantine must be considered as trying to overthrow the Greek constitution.

Venizelos, as leader of Pan Hellenism, wants to annex the coast of Asia Minor and restore to his country the glories of ancient Greece. This reward he hoped to get from the allies for co-operation. But a strong party, including a majority of the Greek general staff, believes that Greece could not hold this coast. Large garrisons would be necessary for the subjugation of the Turks, and they feel the task would be too vast. Therefore, it is uncertain whether the premier will be able to dominate the situation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—London commentators that the allies have muddled the Balkan situation were emphasized today by the possibility that King Constantine will be able to organize a coalition ministry by utilizing some of the Venizelos cabinet and some of the opposition. If he succeeds in this move the outcome will be serious for the allies.

The king has apparently decided that Greece will not begin hostilities against the Turks. At the same time it is unlikely that Bulgaria will attack Greece, as such a move would be contrary to the Treaty of Athens.

Then the allied landing at Salonika would constitute a dangerous element. In fact, it is intimated that Paris and London are not in accord regarding the violation of Greece's neutrality. Furthermore, Greece may interfere with use of it as a base for the allied operations in behalf of Serbia.

While the allies would not fight Greece, their situation would be precarious, if, after the troops had reached Serbia, Greece cut their lines of communication.

The allies placed their faith on the deposed Premier Venizelos, and his support crumbled under the black opposition. If he is reinstated, all perhaps will be well, but at present it appears that the allies placed too much confidence in him.

"The Circus Man," to Be Shown at the Star Tomorrow

Undoubtedly one of the widest read novels, "The Rose of the Ring," by George Barr McCutcheon, which has been made into a motion picture drama under the title of "The Circus Man," by the Lasker Feature Play company, with Theodore Roberts, America's leading character actor, in the title role, is a typical American play of circus life. Most of the scenes in this production are taken under the circus tents or on the grounds, and contain many interesting scenes of circus life, and one can imagine that they are witnessing one of the performances of one of the large circuses of this country. Mr. Roberts is ably supported by a good cast, and this picture undoubtedly will please, as it is one out of the ordinary run of pictures. This feature, in six parts, will be shown at the Star Sunday only. "The Goose Girl," shown at the Star last night, met with all the expectations, and was well received by a good-sized audience. Dainty Marguerite Clark as the heroine is one whom everyone is sure to like, and to see her in this production is seeing her in one of her best parts. This feature will be shown tonight for the last time, and those wishing to see a good production should not miss this chance.

Americans Learn Aerial War Game Under France

By WM. PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Sept. 23.—(By mail)—After the war is over the American aerial legion now enlisted with the French forces "for the period of the war," will return to America as the "Escadrille Americaine," and promote propaganda for more thorough American aerial defense.

American members of the French Foreign Aerial Legion already have asked the French government to incorporate them into a single aerial squadron under the leadership of C. T. Weymann, dean of the American fliers, and once winner of the international aviation cup.

The squadron's individual exploits would be recorded under the collective title of "Escadrille Americaine." These American boys have played and are playing an important part in making, through daring aerial raids, France's reputation for mastery of the skies. Weymann has shot down a German Taube he caught circling over Rheims. Other daring exploits are to his credit. He is held in esteem by the French on an equality with the best French aviators.

Eight other Americans, by enlisting for the period of the war, and undergoing the required training, have already received their licenses. Eleven more are just winding up their probationary period. The licensed Americans include William Thaw, already an under-lieutenant; Norman Prince, Elliott Cowden, Francis Curtis, James Bach, Burt Hall, H. G. Guerin and Didier Masson.

Aside from the regular training which they have undergone as pilots, they have been given by the French government all the special instructions necessary.

NURSE SHOULD VISIT SCHOOLS

NAPA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, RE-PERIMENT SUCH A SUCCESS
THAT STATE COMMISSIONER
FAVORS PERMANENT NURSE

United Press Service
SACRAMENTO, Oct. 3.—Dr. Margaret Schallenberg, state commissioner of elementary schools, is enthusiastic over the installation of a visiting nurse in the schools of the state by the California Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Miss Eloise Thornton of Los Angeles is the nurse, and today she is engaged in visiting the schools of Napa county. She will visit schools in other counties with the idea of teaching prevention of disease, rather than cure. Sunshine, fresh air, cleanliness, good food and exercises are advocated by Miss Thornton.

"I believe," says Dr. Schallenberg, "that Miss Thornton's visits will demonstrate so conclusively the effectiveness of a visiting nurse that local authorities will get busy and employ such a nurse permanently."

War Helps Jersey Horse Show
United Press Service

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 3.—The entry list for the eighteenth annual horse show of the Morristown Field Club, which opened here, was larger than in past years by reason of the international horse show not taking place in London this fall, thus keeping more fine animals in this country.
